There are special rules for students who drop summer courses while receiving financial aid:

Summer semester is divided into different sessions. You may have courses in more than one session. If you receive financial aid at the beginning of summer term, you will have not established eligibility until you begin participating academically in each of your courses beyond July 5. If you do not pass those courses you may be required to repay some or all of your financial aid.

- I understand that I will have to return summer financial aid if I do not establish eligibility by participating academically in all my courses through July 5. (Academic participation must then be verified by the instructor for classes dropped after July 5.)
- Even after establishing eligibility, I understand that if I drop, withdraw from, or fail any summer courses, I may still be required to pay back some or all of my summer financial aid.
- I understand that if the school cancels a summer course, I may be required to return some or all of my summer financial aid unless I can add another eligible course before July 5.
- I understand the returned financial aid must be repaid to USU before I can register for future terms, receive my academic transcript, etc. I understand that failure to repay USU may result in collections and garnishment.
